“ I'm very sad to hear the passing of my Uncle John. I have many fond memories of going to his house in Jefferson Center after church and playing with my cousins while eating dinner (hot dogs come to mind.) Speaking of hot dogs, there was that amazing tale I remember hearing more than once growing up when Leroy downed a prodigious amount of dogs from the Butler Hot Dog Shop. Was it a dozen? Or more. The tale grew through the years, but I remember this young kid was in awe every time I stopped in for a steamed-bun dog before it closed. I also remember his "1611" cap. He had such strong convictions in his faith, an admirable trait in this day and age. I wish Michelle, Jonathan, and the entire family my sincere condolences during this difficult time. God Bless. Mark Sasse.
